Cardiff Metropolitan University

Cardiff Metropolitan University was formerly University of Wales Institute, Cardiff (UWIC).

A recent Times Good University Guide described the UWIC (Cardiff Met) as "The best new university in the UK". Also, The Sunday Times ranked UWIC (Cardiff Met) as the leading new university in Wales for the fourth year running, they wrote:

"UWIC [Cardiff Met] has consistently been among the best-performing modern universities in the UK ... where students acquire skills that make them consistently among the most employable graduates."

In the most recent assessment, the results of the UK Research Assessment Exercise saw UWIC (Cardiff Met) ranked seventh of all new universities across the UK, in the process achieving the second highest increase in ranking of all UK universities.

Additionally, in 2010 UWIC (Cardiff Met) was ranked second by I-Graduate out of over 100 British universities in terms of satisfaction for international students. This incorporates categories such as teaching quality, student facilities, student services, library and General atmosphere and experience.
